PRIMARY RESULTS DISCUSSED

the Boy Orator, who is an employee of Atkinson's office, and this was the cause of the trouble. The circulars are full of personalities, and Sam objected to their being written in a government office.

It is said that Atkinson promised to call down the orating young clerk for getting up such stuff, but the circulars didn't stop, and when Sam and Jack met on Saturday night the road supervisor brought the subject up. The result was a very heated discussion, which didn't leave the two men on speaking terms. The secretary is said to have called Sam a prevaricator, using a shorter word, and for a moment Sam's muscular right seemed likely to enter the controversy.

Jim Quinn appears to have received a sort of achi quietus, but may not stay dead any more than Achi does. As the list of delegates stands, however, it is said that his chances of a supervisorship are not very good. Dwight is believed to have a good chance in the Fifth. Chillingworth is regarded as certain for the Senate in view of the big vote he polled in the second of the Fourth.

NO HOPE OF SAVING SHERIDAN

room being in compartment No. 3, the engine room in compartment No. 4 and the tall shaft in compartment No. 5. It is reported that the bulkheads between the engine and fire rooms has buckled, resulting in the water getting into both compartments. The water was according to the report brought by the Manning, about 22 feet up inside of the vessel, in the fire room and engine compartments. There is small chance of the vessel ever floating with water in those compartments even if she be pulled off. In fact reports brought by the Manning indicate that if she were to be pulled off the reef into deeper water she would immediately sink.

The Sheridan has one kedge anchor out to hold her in her present position. When the Manning left the Sheridan there was no particular danger. There was not much of a swell running but last night a half a gale prevailed and a most marked northerly current was running.

Captain Penbody of the Sheridan thinks that the proper way to float his vessel is to get her off on the port side forward as there is deeper water off her port side. He thinks that the towing vessel should have put their lines on her bow in order to throw her stern around toward the shore, in the hope that she would slide off the saddle into deeper water.

The Manning's services were no longer required at the Sheridan so the revenue cutter returned to the city for the purpose of remaining in a position where she can go either to the Sheridan or the Manchuria as she may be required. Her services will probably not be required at the Manchuria for at least a week and fully the same period of time is likely to elapse before she will be required at the Sheridan. In the meanwhile the Manning will take on coal. Captain Joyner is to have the waist of the windlass of his vessel made larger. She is now lying at the Channel wharf.

The steamer Ivalani is under charter to the army people and is making frequent trips to the scene of the wreck.

DE BOLT OPENS THE NEW TERM

FORESTALLING LEGAL QUIBBLES
BY HAVING A FORMAL OPENING OF THE TERM.

Judge De Bolt this morning opened the September term of the Circuit Court and adjourned to tomorrow morning. The law provides for the opening of the term on the first Monday in September, and the judge decided in order to forestall any possible legal contentions, that a formal opening should be had this morning, although today is a legal holiday. About a dozen defendants were present, and all their cases were postponed to tomorrow, when the term business will begin. Judge De Bolt will charge the grand jury.

HAGLAND SAYS SEA IS SMOOTH

REPORTS THE TRANSPORT AS RESTING EASILY ALL NIGHT—
DOUBTFUL OF SAVING HER.

Captain Hagland of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company returned this morning from the transport Sheridan and he reports the position of the Sheridan did not change any during the night, and that the big ship is resting easily and not pounding at all. The condition of the sea and wind is most favorable.

"The transport rested very easily last evening," stated the captain this morning, "and the condition of the sea and the wind could not be more favorable. The ship has taken all of the water that she can take unless she slides off into deeper water. One anchor is out so that the ship will be held stationary even if a heavy sea should come up."

"I am afraid that the ship is doomed but of course one never can tell for a certainty. She is badly injured. While she can not take any more water now she would probably fill if she were floated."

STILL LEFT.

"Mister," said the lanky hook agent, "can I sell you a volume entitled 'What to do with Left-Overs?'"

"Let me see it," replied the old farmer eagerly. "What kind of 'left-overs' does it refer to?"

"Why, 'left-overs' around the kitchen." "Oh, go on! I thought it meant gals. I've got six darters who have been waiting to catch handsome city boarders for the last seventeen years and they haven't caught any yet!"—Chicago Daily News.

CHANGE IN TENNIS MAY BE ATTEMPTED

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PAPERS
ATTACKING THE PRESENT METHOD OF WINNING.

The tennis world of Great Britain and to some extent of the States, is just now discussing with much heat the present system of deciding the annual championships. In England particularly, the rank and file protest against the system in vogue for years, and claim that an innovation is absolutely essential to determine the rightful championship.

The American tennis team which recently invaded England in the unsuccessful hunt for the Davis trophy was often consulted about the matter while on the other side, and while the members are said not to have committed themselves to any system, yet they are supposed to favor a change both in this country and England. The systems are at present alike both here and abroad.

It appears that the main objection is in the fact that in trying to gain championship honors a player must go through about seven or eight exhaustive rounds before he can gain the privilege of challenging the title holder, who at the same time is sitting on the side benches. Thus the holder is in first-class shape, while the challenger is in anything but good form for a grueling match.

On the other hand, those favoring the present system declare that a champion after winning his laurels, is entitled to sit idly by and wait, for some one to challenge, and that it would be manifestly unfair to force him to go through a lot of playing with the smaller fry, often taking chances of losing through some mishap to an inferior player.

In England the majority seems to favor a revision of the rules whereby the title holder shall compete in the championship tournament from start to finish, the same as the golfers do, or, in fact, championships in every other sport.

Tennis players who object to a change point to the golf world and scoff at the system now in vogue requiring all aspirants to meet on an equal footing with advantages to no champion.

They point to the result of the past few years and openly declare that at present the most proficient golfer is not the champion. Three or four men are looked upon as better than the man who holds the honors, now, they declare.

Those who favor a change, however, say that golf is more a game of chance than is tennis, and that the comparison hardly holds in this case. The same system, however, is adopted in the rowing world where the aspirant must only have graduated by faster victories before being eligible in the major races for championships. In swimming every man starts on a par, and there are probably no sports where this is not so except in tennis. Why this sport should favor the title holder is not clear to those opposing the idea.

It is declared that in case of men holding legs on cups and trophies it is an entirely different matter. There a man is entitled to wait for an opponent worthy of his mettle.

From the reports in English sporting periodicals, it looks as if a change is not unlikely, and if Great Britain shows the way, this country will doubtless follow suit.

FRIENDSHIP, PEACE AND PROSPERITY.

The motive of Secretary Root's visit to South America is to bring about more cordial relations between the United States and the other republics of this hemisphere, to persuade the latter that the United States has no purpose of annexation or aggrandizement. His speech delivered before the Pan-American congress Tuesday night was an admirable exposition of the pacific policy, national and international, of all the common interests and aims of this great series of self-governing nations. By different paths they have come to the same form of government. Smaller or greater, they are working out essentially the same problem. The Monroe doctrine, leaving all America free to develop in its own ways, undisturbed by the intrusion of alien politics and of foreign colonization for the benefit of European nations, is necessary for the safety, the continued autonomy and self-preservation and the future and full development of every American republic. Friendship, peace and prosperity—that is the hope and message of the United States for all her sister republics of the south.—New York Sun.

WOMAN'S BOARD.
The Woman's Board of Missions will meet in the lecture room of the Central Union Church on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The new study of Africa, following the outline of Christus Liberator, will be introduced by Mrs. Withington—"The Dark Continent." The first report will be heard from our very new and welcome auxiliary society, the Kin Kok Kong Yui. A number of visiting missionaries will be with us, and it is hoped that through at least a portion of the hour we may have the presence of our pastor, Rev. J. Walter Sylvester, who sails on the Siberia in the afternoon.

Strangers in the city as well as resident friends are most cordially invited to be in attendance. A special invitation is extended to the Missionary Gleaners.

RESERVE YOUR ROOMS.
If you have a day to spare try Haleiwa as a comfortable resort. The guests at that now famous place are loud in their praises of the rooms, cuisine and service. The climate is ideal—every night a cool one with a blanket in demand. The breeze at Haleiwa blows continually and is at all times refreshing. During the balance of the summer season special rates will be made for guests. Week end tickets from Saturday until Monday and excursion tickets sold on Monday will be good until next Tuesday night. The Haleiwa limited will run next Monday as well as Sunday. St. Clair Bligood, Manager.
